Marcum acquired CPA Consulting Group of Nashville, Tenn., effective Nov. 1.

Marcum, based in Manhattan and with large operations in Melville, added two partners, Cathy Werthan and Bryan Jones, and 15 associates to its Nashville office. Werthan, who was president of CPA Consulting Group, came aboard as Nashville office managing partner.

CPA Consulting Group was a full-service accounting firm serving individuals and businesses in more than a dozen industries, including real estate, law, architecture, engineering, construction, creative services, and medicine and dentistry.

“CPACG has a long history of service to clients throughout the greater Nashville area,” Jeffrey Weiner, chairman and CEO of Marcum, said in a statement. “Cathy Werthan and Bryan Jones have built an exceptional team with deep roots locally and regionally. They will be great stewards of our combined growth and expanded service portfolio to our Nashville clients.”

Werthan said there were “tremendous synergies” between CPACG and Marcum, pointing to the latter’s strength in the middle market and focus on the construction industry in Nashville, which she called “a great complement to our design-build client portfolio.”

“My partner and I, as well as our staff, are excited to be part of the Marcum organization and are eager to get started on our work together,” Werthan said in a statement.

Marcum has 26 locations across the United States, as well as offices in China, Ireland and Grand Cayman.
