Marcum adds New Haven-based firm

By: Claude Solnik May 1, 2017

Marcum has merged Meyers, Harrison & Pia and Meyers, Harrison & Pia Valuation and Litigation Support into its business, adding 55 partners and staff in New Haven, Connecticut, and Portland, Maine.

Founded in 1954 in New Haven, Meyers, Harrison & Pia specializes in business valuation, financial forensic, and litigation support .

Marcum Managing Partner Jeffrey Weiner said Meyers, Harrison & Pia “built a highly respected practice that is well recognized within the litigation support and valuation specialty.”

Anthony Scillia, partner-in-charge of Marcum’s New England region, said the deal will expand “Marcum’s geographic footprint in New England, supplementing our existing New Haven office and giving us a presence in Maine.”

In addition to New Haven, Marcum’s New England offices include Hartford and Greenwich, Conn.; Boston and Providence, Rhode Island.

Meyers, Harrison & Pia CEO Mark Harrison said Marcum provides “significantly greater resources as well as access to a deep bench of talent across the firm’s practice areas.”
