A New England firm has merged into Marcum, the accounting and advisory firm, headquartered in New York.

Melanson, of Merrimack, New Hampshire and with locations in Maine and Massachusetts [sic], is now part of Marcum's New England region, bringing its 13 partners, 100 associates and four offices.

The deal, whose terms were not disclosed, became effective Jan. 1.

Founded in 1976, Melanson was a regional public accounting firm serving individuals and businesses, specializing in the government and nonprofit sectors, as well as managed accounting services. The firm routinely earned the highest rating in peer reviews and was ranked a regional leader by Accounting Today and a top 300 firm by Inside Public Accounting.

"The Melanson team is highly regarded for their leadership, commitment to superior client service, and dedication to the highest industry standards. They ran a highly respected and accomplished firm, and we warmly welcome them to Marcum," Jeffrey Weiner, Marcum's chairman and CEO said in a statement.

"Melanson grew over more than 40 years by providing clients with exceptional financial advice and services while fostering a challenging and rewarding environment for our employees. We've always believed that you can't have one without the other, and this is what makes our future with Marcum so bright. We share an absolute commitment to individual and collective success that will benefit our clients and our people right out of the starting gate," Scott Toothaker, Melanson's managing principal and now Marcum's office managing partner in New Hampshire, said in a statement.

"The entire Melanson team strongly complements Marcum's industry strengths in the government and nonprofit sectors, while expanding our New England presence. They will be a key asset to our clients and our team as we continue to grow in this region,” Anthony Scillia, Marcum’s New England regional managing partner, said in a statement.

“Marcum continues to have success with their geographic strategy of finding best-in-class regional leaders to join their firm,” Allan Koltin, CEO of Koltin Consulting Group, who advised both firms on the combination, said in a statement. “Melanson was one of the preeminent firms in New England, and their combination with Marcum should produce great growth and long-term value for both.”

With a national and international presence, Marcum’s Long Island offices are located in Melville, Uniondale, Riverhead and Bridgehampton.
