Marcum LLP, one of the nation's largest independent public accounting and advisory services, has acquired Miami's OGH Certified Public Accountants & Advisors.

The deal, effective Aug. 1, adds two partners, 17 associates and a second Miami office to Marcum's South Florida operations. Julie Gross Gelfand, director of public relations and communications for Marcum, declined to comment on the financial details of the transaction.

"OGH's focused experience is an additional asset in several of Marcum's core industry groups, while also bringing experience in several new industries to our South Florida region," Michael Balter, Marcum's southeast regional managing partner, said in a statement.

The acquisition brings OGH's real estate development and investment, construction, and domestic and international tax expertise to Marcum's umbrella of services. In addition to its two Miami offices, Marcum has locations in Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach.

With $48 million in gross billings, Marcum ranked No. 4 on the South Florida Business Journal's 2019 list of largest South Florida accounting firms by billings. It ranked No. 9 on the Business Journal's list of largest firms by number of CPA's.

The firm, which has more 2,000 partners across its 34 U.S. and international offices, reported $550 million in revenue for 2018.
