Tod Edgecomb is a director in the Firm's Advisory & Consulting practice and a member of the CFO and Controllership Advisory Services group. He has over 25 years of experience in both public accounting and private industry, including more than 20 years as an auditor. His experience includes the manufacturing, high-tech, consumer products, life sciences, oil/gas distribution, and power/utility industries. In his current role, he provides controllership and CFO services to both public and private companies.

Mr. Edgecomb's technical expertise has been focused on revenue recognition, business combinations, the adoption of the new lease standard, impairment of goodwill and long-lived assets, and stock compensation. He has also assisted with mergers and acquisitions in a variety of situations, including buy-side and sell-side support, purchase price allocations, and post integration matters.

Prior to joining Marcum, Mr. Edgecomb spent several years working with "Big 4" and large regional firms, serving both middle-market and large, publicly traded clients, reporting under both U.S. GAAP and IFRS. Much of his work encompassed reporting for overseas subsidiaries in Ireland, UK, Australia, Germany, China, Brazil, Switzerland, Thailand, and Canada. His roles also included: an assistant controller at a technology and finance company in South Portland, Maine where he was involved in internal and external reporting, improving internal controls and special projects, including the start-up of a bank in Utah and the analysis of a potential receivable securitization program.
